1. Al Quoz Pond Park

This is a great park with a view! Have a picnic overlooking the tallest tower in the world while admiring the wildlife around the area. There are several playgrounds in the park, a jogging path and a coffee shop just right in front of the pond. It's a small park but it has everything you need for a day-out with kids.

2. Barsha Pond Park

This park is a perfect escape for families and sports-minded people. There's a cycling track, wide green spaces for picnics, playgrounds and a jogging track too. You can also rent a bike or a paddle boat if you feel like having an adventure. And when the sky is clear, you can see Burj Al Arab from afar. This free park has amazing landscape views and great for a full day picnic with kids.

3. Dubai Hills Park

Dubai Hills Park by Emaar is the newest park in the city. Entry is free! It's a lush, green oasis with different playgrounds suited for all ages. There's also a splash pad, ice rink and skate park enough to entertain every kid or teenager. There's a minimal fee for these facilities. The little ones will love the playground where the main attraction is a massive wooden dragon complete with a slide, castle and footbridge. The sunken trampoline and mini zipline are a plus!

4. Al Khazzan Park

Did you know this family park is a zero-energy park? The electricity, irrigation system and even the lamp posts are powered by solar energy. This park is great for a short day-out within the city. There's a playground with massive slides overlooking Burj Khalifa.

5. Burj Park

Yes, there's a small island in the Burj Lake where you can relax, read a book or admire Dubai's skyscrapers. But what makes this park so delightful? You and your kids will be able to watch the Dubai Mall fountain show while sitting on the grass or having a picnic at night.
